MAIN STREET BAPTISTS IN REMODELLED EDIFICE

Now One of Best Appointed Churches of Its Denomination in the Entire State.

Sunday, Sept. 14th, the congregation of the Main St. Baptist church of Newport, worshipped for the first time in their newly renovated church building. Easter Sunday a special free-will offering was taken, the proceeds to be used in repairs to the church building. The offering in cash and short-term pledges amounted to about $1400. With this money the building has been shingled, a new hot-air heating plant installed, a beautiful birch and maple floor laid in the main auditorium and the aisles covered with plain green velvet runners. The ceilings and walls of the church and vestry have been refinished and a ventilating system has been installed. The pastor of the church, Rev. A. V. Allen, who formerly was assistant superintendent of the Vermont State Baptist convention, and who in that capacity has visited nearly all of the Baptist churches of the state, said in his sermon that the Main Street church now has as attractive and well appointed a church auditorium as there is in the state. The sermon of the morning was on the subject, "What Makes a Church Attractive." The thought presented was that no matter how beautiful the church building, unless the members were consistent in daily living, sociable among themselves and to strangers; unselfish in their ministry to a needy world; and charitable in their thoughts and discussions of other people, the church would not be an attractive place in the community.

NEW BUILDINGS FOR BUSINESS GROWTH.

Three City Concerns Completing New Plants Which Mean City Industrial Progress.

Notwithstanding the high cost of labor and building material three buildings that we have not at yet mentioned, are being erected in our city, and when completed will employ several men.

A. C. Lacasse has erected a new stone shed near the flour sheds. This building is 85x31 feet located near the B. & M. railroad tracks. The sheds are so arranged that cars may be run into the building and loaded and unloaded by a large traveling crane operated by electricity. There is also an entrance where teams can drive into the building to unload. When completed, which will be about Nov. 1, it will be an up-to-date stone shed in every respect.

The Prouty & Miller Lumber Co., have erected a new sawmill in the International mill yards, to replace the one destroyed by fire June 20th. This building is 36 by 96 feet and two stories high. The machinery to be installed has begun to arrive and it is expected to be completed around November 1. The Prouty & Miller firm have suffered many severe losses by fires, but each time they have come back with new buildings which are modern and up-to-date.

G. W. Reed & Sons, G. D. and E. G. Reed, members of the Orleans Boat & Machine Co., are erecting a new machine shop on East Main street. The first floor of this building is up and boarded, the building being 30x90 feet and two stories high. There is also a boiler room 12x24. When this building is completed, the firm will not only build boats but do all kinds of wood work and plumbing.

The J. E. Renihan brick block on Main street, which has been mentioned is drawing near to completion and adds one more fine block on Main street.

Dr. Gatchell of Beebe was called recently to see Mrs. B. J. Farr, who has bronchitis.

Several from here attended the auction at G. W. Harris' in West Charleston Friday.

The house was decorated with flowers and autumn leaves and the lawn and veranda were lighted where the East Charleston band played several selections.
